Product description

If we could draw the whole body of the knight here it could be a galloping one. Head slightly inclined, upright ears resembling two sharp horns, tousled mane and opened muzzle suggest it is in racing mood and probably running at the moment. This concept is rather rare among chess pieces that is why it makes this model so special. The whole set is carefully carved and beautifully polished by skilled indian artisans. The black pieces are made of padauk (Pterocarpus sandalinus) thanks to which their appearance is absolutely fascinating.
