Product description

New In Chess 2017#8 covers the new Junior World Champion Aryan Tari, Ding Liren's Game of the Year and the Mallorca Grand Prix. And of course there is an abundance of exclusive masterclasses by elite players from all over the world.

Is blitz a drug?

Jennifer Vallens explains how getting your fix may fix your game.

The Game of the Year

Ding Liren created a masterpiece of lasting beauty, annotated by the Chinese GM himself.

Another Norwegian

Norway's up-and-coming man Aryan Tari is the new Junior World Champion.

Mind Games in Mallorca

While Radjabov and Vachier-Lagrave saw their hopes to earn a place in the Candidates tournament go up in smoke, two GMs not present in Mallorca could celebrate their qualification at home.

Peak ratings

Who will be missed most at the Candidates in Berlin?

Judit Polgar's column

Coaching a team is not merely a matter of fielding the strongest players.

Don't spoil the fun

Nigel Short argues that it's lack of chess culture if you deny your opponent the chance to show the point of his fine play.

A family festival

Jan Timman writes about a battle of generations, 'Jorden van Foreest's last chance', and Jorden's talented little sister, 10-year-old Machteld.

Secrets of Opening Surprises

Magnus Carlsen builds a case for a refined Owen's Defence.

Bill Lombardy: 1937-2017

Mark Wieder remembers an old friend, increasingly embittered and hard to deal with, but with a never-ending love for the game.

Fair & Square

What was part of Jane Fonda's happiness in her marriage with Roger Vadim?

Azerbaijan European Champions

Unruffled by a sensational first-round loss, Azerbaijan went on to win the European Team Championship ahead of Russia in a classic comeback story.

For fun & for blood

Entertainment and experiment are the key words as top stars engage in unusual competitions at the Champions Showdown in St. Louis. The World Champion was in a league of his own.

Maximize Your Tactics

Find the right moves.

Sadler on Books

Matthew Sadler was happy to receive more than one book with series of instructive positions.

The journey of a lifetime

Hans Ree read a book about chess life in the period of Dutch colonial rule in Indonesia.

Just Checking

What was the best thing Maxim Dlugy ever said about chess?
